Target public

The French Studies University Diploma (DUEF) is a course leading to a qualification dispensed by the DEFI and intended for a foreign but French-speaking public outside any exchange programme.

Course objectives

The lessons provided take an intercultural approach and have an action-oriented perspective. The objective is to help develop oral and written understanding, production, interaction and mediation skills. Students will often work in pairs or in small groups to accomplish tasks during an interactive exchange.

This course offers the opportunity to validate one level per semester and obtain the diploma for that level.

It also prepares the student for FLE certifications, such as TCF, TCF-DAP, DELT and DALF.

Number of hours

These are intensive lessons: 15 hours/week; a semester is 13 weeks long. There are also sessions in the multi-media library (1 hr 30 minutes per week) and independent work at the Language Resource Centre in addition to the programme of lessons. There are thus at least 20 hours of training per week, and this allows a study visa to be issued.

Schedule

Two training sessions per year: from September to January and from February to June.

Assessment methods

The principle of continuous assessment is used. Each level prepares for a French Studies University Diploma to be obtained, at the corresponding level. It confirms the skills and knowledge of French and French-speaking Language and Culture. At the end of the exam, the student is awarded the diploma and a certificate of achievement. Once a level has been validated, the student is automatically allowed to move on to the higher level.
